ABOUT TRI-M

The Tri-M Music Honor Society is the only national honor society for student musicians in the United States, serving middle and high school students. Established in 1936 as “Modern Music Masters,” it became a program of the National Association for Music Education (NAfME) in 1983. Tri-M recognizes students who demonstrate excellence in music, academics, leadership, and service.

With over 2,100 chapters worldwide and more than 84,000 student members, Tri-M fosters student-led initiatives that promote music education and community engagement. Members contribute over 750,000 service hours annually and raise nearly $1 million for charitable causes. Through performances, service projects, and leadership opportunities, Tri-M empowers young musicians to make a positive impact in their schools and communities.

Chapter 7731 of Franklin Academy Charter High School was established with the inductions of their candidate member class in May of 2018.
